AFCIN Reorganization

1. The following notes on the AFCIN Reorganization are a result of my visit to Colonel Lander and K. T. Johnson on 8 January and also conversations with a personal friend in AFCIN-1.

2. Substantively AFCIN will be divided into two air intelligence centers; a Technical Intelligence Center located at Dayton and an Air Intelligence Center located at Arlington Hall. ATIC will remain as it is now. The new center at Arlington Hall will include present AFCIN-2 and 3. According to personnel in AFCIN-1 (Collections and Dissemination), no decision has been sent down on its place in the new organization -- however, it obviously must support both centers. The top of the new organization will be the current AFCIN (General Walsh) and the Air Intelligence Staff (AFCIN X).

3. With regard to the Air Intelligence Center at Arlington Hall, [redacted] are currently working on the functions and administrative groupings. Their analysis is pointed toward the substantive information inputs and required intelligence outputs of AFCIN. I would say that this is mainly due to Colonel Brown's "task force" approach to the problem.

4. With regard to the above information a very rough organization chart is sketched below.
